For a different perspective on how to do ecommerce sites, take a look at usedIT.com (copy on my server). This is an ecommerce site with six products done completely in JavaScript in 5043 bytes! It even has a shopping cart, something which ArsDigita Shoppe doesn't. Also, at least if you are using Netscape, it deletes all of the JavaScript code after running, so you don't get to see the source code when using View -> View Source.

The Web Production Group at Cornell University did it for the 5k Award for Excellence in Web Design and Production.
